ENCOURAGING ALL FEDERAL CONTRACTORS TO SUPPORT HAITIAN RELIEF EFFORTS

Falls Church, Virginia, February 1, 2010 – In light of the clear and present need for the most basic necessities in earthquake ravaged Haiti, THE CENTECH GROUP, Inc. (CENTECH) is encouraging all federal business contractors – large, medium and small - to join in shouldering responsibility and contributing to relief efforts for this island nation that has suffered such a devastating and monumental tragedy.

While millions have already been given to numerous relief organizations by individuals, it is estimated that it will take trillions to rebuild the country after the catastrophic earthquake that hit on January 12, 2010. Rebuilding the already economically disadvantaged island nation will include everything from the infrastructure basics (water, sewer, transportation, hospitals, schools, government buildings, etc.) to commercial needs.

“When tragedy occurs we are vividly reminded of how blessed we are that our fates have been more fortunate and that our responsibility to help has never been more necessary, more urgent or more demanding. Most of us have never known, nor will ever know, what it is to be really hungry, tragically injured, denied shelter, without hope, without resources and without support all at once.” said CENTECH President and Chief Executive Officer, Fernando V. Galaviz. “We recognize the needs of others and we hope that larger and richer companies in our industry and outside of it will join us in giving to relief efforts so that the small positive difference that we hope to make can become a major positive difference for Haiti and its victims and its future.”

CENTECH and its management believe that all who have the resources also have the responsibility to contribute to one of the worst disasters to ever hit a country in the Western Hemisphere. While CENTECH has made a sizable donation to CARE, one of the world's largest humanitarian aid organizations which is accepting donations for Haiti at www.care.org, they encourage all federal business contractors to find any appropriate agency or relief group to contribute to as soon as possible.
